

The CDMA version of Palm's Treo Pro has just received FCC approval, the final step to it becoming available for sale. It's been rumored for weeks to release on Sprint and many thought Palm would use CES to announce the Treo Pro. It's clear the company wanted to keep one the light shining on the new Palm Pre, which it did quite successfully with the Pre winning "Best in Show" at CES

With the Pre announcement behind us, look for a Sprint Treo Pro announcement in the coming days, weeks.

via EngadgetMobile